

Vicente Basabe

2009-09-15

He started his professional career ten years ago as “trainees consultant” , after that he worked in commercial banking before getting into the international trade sector seven years ago.

He has worked for both public institutions and private companies from different sectors and sizes, which have given him a large experience in the needs, threats, strengths, weaknesses and opportunities that affect businesses when developing their international markets.

He promoted business in West Africa, prospected and opened markets in Europe, Turkey, Morocco and Latin America, and he had been managing the daily trade process with over fifty countries in five continents for 5 years.

He is bringing into Bridgedworld his experience in the plastic sector (agriculture and packaging) and the provision of international trade development, international market research, business organization, logistics, marketing and international trade management services.

He is a graduate in Business Administration by the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid, MBA by the ENAE business school of Murcia and Expert in Foreign Trade by the UNED, besides other specialized courses : technical market research, e-management, creativity and problem-solving. He speaks Spanish, English and French.